

The Life and Art of C. G. Jung: A Multimedia Presentation

Friday, February 7, 2020, 7:00 pm

David Strong Building C122 University of Victoria

Join the C.G. Jung Society of Victoria as we venture to take a step into the world of C.G. Jung, his life and his work. Together we will view the well-known BBC interview of Jung (released 1959), where he, interviewed by John Freeman, answers questions on his life and his psychology. This film has been considered to have brought more people to Jung than any other piece of journalism or even his vast writings. Next, we will look at images from a recent publication entitled The Art of C.G. Jung. These are never before published images that "... [trace] the evolution of Jung's visual efforts from childhood through to adulthood, while illuminating the close relation of Jung's lived experience to his scientific and creative endeavours". (Quote taken from jacket cover of The Art of Jung. W. W. Norton & Company, Inc, 2019) We will conclude with the voice of Marie-Louise von Franz, speaking shortly after Jung's death.

We welcome newcomers to Jung as well as those steeped in his work to join us for questions and discussion, led by Jungian Analyst Judith Dowling.

Tea, coffee and light snacks will be served during the break. We welcome newcomers to Jung and hope that those steeped in his work will come to join us as we rediscover C. G. Jung. In appreciation of Jung's life and work, the Society is offering a special invitation with reduced rates.
